

About Us

Named for the City of Easton's position as an economic and cultural "crossroads" at the confluence of the Delaware and Lehigh Rivers. Chautauqua at the Forks of the Delaware recognizes the vital role that urban centers play in bringing people from different backgrounds together for public dialogue, continuing education, artistic creation, spiritual examination, and community regeneration.

Adopting the motto "Creating Community in a Changing World," the organization's emphasis is on ecumenical/interfaith, educational, and cultural inquiry, dialogue and debate, life-long learning, and the practice of literary, performing, and visual arts at a high level of excellence.
